- Abstract: This article deals with the Hebrew Sefer ben ha-melekh we-ha-nazir, a version of the legend of Barlaam and Josaphat probably based on an Arabic source that has not been conserved. A first part presents an overview of the work's structure, parable corpus, and narrative instances, putting special emphasis on stylistic features. An appendix complements this part. A second part focuses on the depiction on two narrative levels of transmission of wisdom as a constitutive element of the - ascetic's job.
