

Classiques Garnier

- Collections
- French literature
- Renaissance
- La Boétie Studies

La « servitude volontaire » de Médée Conflictualité psychique et résistance

- Publication type: Article from a collective work
- Collective work:
Nature et naturel
. Autour du Discours de la servitude volontaire
- Author: Bourbon (Marion)
- Abstract: By focusing on the figure of Medea in the writings of Seneca, Marion Bourbon shows that the question of voluntary servitude can be seen as a rapport with the self, in which it incarnates the resolution of a psychic conflict which has become untenable : Medea chooses the worst because this is the only way to rid herself of a conflict which is tearing her apart. In this sense, Medea's voluntary servitude sketches out a model for a "politics of the self".
- Pages: 19 to 34
- Collection: La Boétie Studies, n° 4
- CLIL theme: 4027 -- SCIENCES HUMAINES ET SOCIALES, LETTRES -- Lettres et Sciences du langage -- Lettres -- Etudes littéraires générales et thématiques
- EAN: 9782812435706
- ISBN: 978-2-8124-3570-6
- ISSN: 2262-0427
- DOI: 10.15122/isbn.978-2-8124-3570-6.p.0019
- Publisher: Classiques Garnier
- Online publication: 03-07-2015
- Language: French
- Display online